Madison-"The Cat and the Canary."

Mystery 'melodramas like "The Cat and the Canary," which had its world premiere showing at the Madison yesterday, lose one dramatic element of vast importance when they flicker on the silent screen. The blood-curding yells and, shricks of terror that are employed with such telling effect by stage mysteries have no place on the silver sheet.

But "The Cat and the Canary" employs lowering shadows and unexpected camera angles to such good purpose that no one misses the noise." The tale of the heirs to the West millions who were compelled to spend the night in a haunted house where they believed a maniac to be loose produces honest-toorime cold chills on the vertebrae. Weird flashes of light, circling spot lights, flickering lamps, shadows, all these are woven intoa nocturne of blackness and fear that no amount of howling on the stage can surpass. There is also some comfort in the knowledge that the maniac cannot leap out of the screen into the audience, as he so frequently does these days in our best conducted theaters.

Laura LaPlante is the unfortunate heiress whom the other relatives hope to prove insane. She gives a creditable performance that will strengthen her growing following among the fans. With her as the country cousin whose love outweighs his fear is Creighton Hale. His trembling but unhesitating pursuit of the criminal leads him into many comic incidents. The other comedy element is staunchly supplied by Flora Finch as the hysterical aunt. Others in the capable cast are Gertrude Astor, Forest Stanley, Arthur Edwin Carewe and Tully Marshall.

Shorter screen subjects, including a comedy, newsreel and sport film.

"THE CAT AND THE CANARY," which has made a rather belated leap from stage to screen, is one of the most mysterious of all the mystery
Clawy Hands stories that have

Make This reached the Film Creepy movies since the flood of creepy yarns inaugurated by "The Bat." It is a mighty good picture, too; well acted, cleverly directed and enhanced by some very appropriate settings. It is showing at the Madison.

Laura La Plante, Universal's beautiful blond, is featured as the heroine, but there are at least two other members of the cast who have just as good opportunities to shine. At that, it is pretty difficult to keep the eyes off Laura once she enters the scenery.

The story deals with the will of an eccentric old millionaire, who, to foil his greedy relatives, provides that his testament shall not be read for 20 years. The film opens on the evening the will is to be read and one by one the relatives arrive at the forbidding, deserted mansion on the hillside. Then things begin to happen. Like all stories of this type, there is a sinister, mysterious figure with spooky, claw-like hands and when they appear there are shrill screams from many of the spectators.

Film stories such as "The Cat and the Canary" have a deep-rooted fascination for the average movie-goer and this is one of the very best of its cless. Creighton Hale plays the frightened hero and the sinister figure of Arthur Edmund Carew, the Svengali of "Trilby," is also noted. Tully Marshall, Flora Finch and Forrest Stanley also have good roles. And one cannot overlook Martha Mattox, who plays the old housekeeper with a choice bit of hard-boiled pantomine.

Laura La Plante peps up with PEP!

WHENEVER a Laura La Plante picture comes to town, it's a promise of fun and pep galore. This season her pictures are peppier than ever. Don't miss a single one!

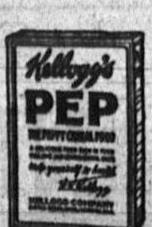

Pep comes to thousands of people at breakfast these days too. In the crispy goodness of delicious Kellogg's PEP.

PEP is the peppiest food you know. It's rich whole wheat-wonderfully flaked and flavored. Contains the vitamins and mineral salts of the nourishing grain. And the bran—just enough to be mildly laxative.

PEP brings pep! It's really health in a package. Serve it for breakfast, lunch or dinner. With milk or cream. With fruits or honey added for extra goodness. Great for kiddles! Your grocer has PEP!
